YOUNG BOY KILLED WHEN HIT BY CAR NEAR FIVE POINTS

Driver Takes Little Boy to County Hospital After Accident; Not Held by Police; To Hold Inquest Tuesday

David F. Murallo, 8-year-old son of Salvadore Murallo of Linden and Hemlock streets, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by R. B. Hoffman of Monterey, on El Camino Real at the Five Points, Wednesday night about 8 o'clock. The youth succumbed to his injuries at the Community Hospital, yesterday morning at 5 o'clock. He had suffered a fractured leg, fractured collar bone and internal injuries.

Hoffman, who was driving north at the time of the accident, told the police that he did not see the boy, but felt his car strike an object. He stopped, he said, and found the boy lying on the highway. He picked the youth up and rushed him to the Community hospital at Beresford, later returing to Redwood City and reporting the accident to the local police. Hoffman was not held. The accident was investigated by Officers Snider, Fitzgerald and Hogan.

Young Murallo, who attended the Washington school on the Woodside road, is survived by his parents and two sisters and two brothers. The father is employed at the plant of the Golden Gate Mushroom Co.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock from the Layng & Tinney Funeral home. Interment will follow in Union Cemetery.

Inquests in the Murallo case and for Douglas Hyde, who was killed in an automobile crash on the Bayshore highway near Belmont, Monday night, will be conducted by County Coroner J. C. McGovern, Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock.

Third Race Track Planned in County

Race Track War Between Rival Factions Opens; Plans Announced

The competition is becoming keen in the race track business. Only last week the announcement was made of the proposal to establish a race course on a 200-acre tract adjoining the Menlo Park Country Club on the Woodside road, west of Redwood City. The news was received this week that another track is being contemplated for this vicinity. James Crofton, president of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club, has announced that he will establish a $2,000,000 racing plant near San Francisco. The exact location of the proposed plant was not given, but it was stated that Wayne McAllister, architect who designed the buildings at Agua Caliente, has been looking for a site here and that several had been reported favorably upon.

"I think that San Francisco and neighboring cities are sufficiently race minded," Crofton is reported to have said, "to warrant the construction of a real race track near there. I want to make one thing clear, however—we do not plan to interfere in any way with Tanforan. We will co-operate with Tanforan officials in an effort to avoid conflicting interests."

Crofton said the plan at present called for two thirty-day meetings at the projected San Francisco track each year. The meetings, he said, would not interfere with the two meetings at Agua Caliente.

"Our plans for the track are about completed. It will be a mile track," Crofton said, "with permanent stalling chutes. The architects drawing calls fo ra lake in the middle of the field, spacious paddocks, fireproof stalls, huge betting ring and grandstands that will seat 15,000 persons. The clubhouse will be the most magnificent ever constructed at a race track."

Crofton said he and his associates were spurred by the popularity of the option system of betting in Northern California and the decisive defeat of a bill introduced during the last session of the Legislature to make that system illegal.

Other Track Here

The announcement of the new track to be built at Redwood City came as surprise to the people of this destrict. The plans as announced by Gene Normile, former manager of the Tiajuana track, and one of the leaders in horse racing, include a million dollar plant. Two hundred acres of land are being secured, it is stated, adjoining the property of the Menlo Park Country Club. This will be within half a mile of Five Points on the Woodside Road.

It is expected by Normile that the track and buildings will be completed in time to be opened with a meeting in January, 1932.

"We expect to have some of the best thoroughbreds in the country, including many from the eastern tracks," he said.

The track will be built by H. D. Brown, Jr., son of H. D. "Curly" Brown, builder of the Arlington and Havana strips. The architect is Austin Moore of the firm of Willis, Polk & Co. Moore will leave with Normile for the east within the near future to inspect the plants on eastern tracks before construction here.

The announcement of the proposed Crofton track in this vicinity was followed by the announcement by Normile that he would build a plant in San Diego similar to the one which he plans here.

Normile is a former associate of Jim Coffroth in the old Tia Juana Jockey Club, and reports from the south say that he is at open war with James N. Crofton, president of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club, now operating the course at Tia Juana.

WORK BEGUN ON W. P. FILL AT BELMONT

The Standard Dredging Company on Monday began throwing up levies into which the earth will be pumped for the fill on which the Western Pacific tracks will be laid. The fill is made by throwing up two parallel dykes and filling the space between with mud pumped from the bottom of the bay with a dredger. The mud settles, leaving a solid foundation for the tracks.

Work was started at Belmont on the property of the Port San Francisco company. It parallels the Bay shore highway a short distance east of the highway. It is stated that the dredging company plans to fill the marsh as far out as the Ohio building and develop the property as industrial sites.

Timney, of Carmichael, was driving west on Jefferson avenue and was making a left-hand turn onto El Camino Real; C. Jacobsen, of Menlo Park, was driving south on the latter highway. The cars collided at the intersection with slight damages to both. The accident was reported to Officer H. J. Fitzgerald of the Redwood City police department.

JUDGE BUCK REVERSES $10,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Damages of $10,000 awarded T. J. Hallinan of San Mateo, against Mills Memorial hospital Wednesday by a jury, were lost yesterday when Superior Judge George H. Buck ordered judgment set aside and judgment entered in favor of the hospital.

Hallinan filed suit for $50,000 against Dr. Kirk H. Prindle, Anna M. McKinnen, nurse at the hospital, and the hospital, charging that he was given an injection of formalin instead of novacaine while undergoing an operation.

The jury returned a verdict in favor of Hallinan and against all three defendants, but awarded him damages against only the hospital.

The attorneys for the plaintiff, J. J Bullock of this city, and Vincent W. Hallinan of San Francisco, indicated they would ask for a new trial. Attorneys for the defendants are Hartley F. Peart, W. C. Bacon and Hall C. Ross.

Moose Lodge Urges Labor Employment

The Moose lodge at its last meeting, endorsed by resolution the $85,000 bonds for schools upon which the people voted Wednesday. The resolution also recommended that contractors who were selected to do the construction work should be requested to employ local labor on the buildings. A program of playground activities was also endorsed by the lodge.

The lodge is planning the initiation of a class of candidates on June 10, at Emerald Lake and a dance will be held there on Saturday evening, June 13.

REDWOOD WOMAN ENGAGED TO MAKE RESEARCH TRIP TO N. Z.

Miss Ruth Mantz To Study Life of Katherine Mansfield In New Zealand; Later In Canada and in London; To Be Accompanied by Mother

Mrs. A. L. Mantz, teacher in the McKinley school here, and her daughter, Miss Ruth Mantz, member of the faculty of the San Mateo high school, will sail on the "Mounganui," of the Union Steamship company line, next Wednesday, for New Zealand. Miss Mantz is making the trip to the islands as a result of a fellowship recently awarded her at Stanford university, in connection with writing her thesis for her master's degree. The thesis consisted of a bibliography of the unpublished manuscripts of Katherine Mansfield, noted short story writer of England, who died at the age of 37 years. The fellowship consists of a trip to England, where Miss Mantz will write a biography of Miss Mansfield.

The bibliography was so well thought of at Stanford university that a copy was sent to one of the largest publishers in New York, and forwarded by that firm to its office in London. The work was ordered published and the first edition is now off the press. In order to secure first-hand information concerning the early life of Miss Mansfield, the London publishing firm is sending Miss Mantz to New Zealand, the birthplace of the noted writer, and where her father is still living.

Some six weeks will be spent on the islands in this research work and following her return to Redwood City, with her mother in August, Miss Mantz will leave for Toronto, Canada, to interview a sister of Miss Mansfield. From there Miss Mantz will go to London to write her biography. She will be in England for a year or more.

In New Zealand, Miss Mantz and her mother will make their headquarters in Wellington, where the daughter will do most of her research work. Mrs. Mantz will spend her time in visiting all the places of interest on the island, she having already arranged her tour through the steamship company.

SEQUOIA ALUMNI ASSOCIATION HOLDS ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The Sequoia Alumni Association held its annual reunion and banquet in the cafeteria of the high school, Wednesday evening, with one of the largest attendances in the history of the organization. President Thomas presided at the meeting.

A surprise feature of the banquet was the appearance of the famous "Helio," President Thomas and Principal Argo having arranged for its appearance, carefully guarded by Officer Harold Fitzgerald of the Redwood City police department.

Otis M. Carrington, class adviser of '11, and for the past 20 years a member of the Sequoia faculty, led in the class songs.

Members of the pioneer class of '98 present at the reunion included Miss Meta Kuegler of Menlo Park, Miss Helena Hanson of Palo Alto and Roy W. Cloud and J. D. Hedge of Redwood City. Principal A. C. Jimmie, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Moore of 925 Hopkins avenue, was slightly injured on Wednesday night, when he was struck by a car driven by Merle Stewart of 948 Elm street, San Carlos. The little boy was with his mother on Broadway, between El Camino Real and Perry street at 6:10 o'clock. They were going to cross the street, and the little fellow, confused by the heavy traffic on Broadway at that time of the evening, darted away from his mother and ran in front of Stewart's machine. He was knocked to the pavement.

The boy's mother and Stewart took him to the office of Dr. Harry Mason, where he was treated for cuts and abrasions, and was later taken to his home. The accident was reported to Officer H. J. Fitzgerald of the Redwood City police department by the boy's mother.

BONDS FOR SCHOOLS WIN BY BIG VOTE AT ELECTION WEDNESDAY

Voters Endorse Issue for School Additions And for Erection of New School in Eagle Hill District

With one of the largest majorities ever received by a bond proposition in this city, the proposal for the issuance of $85,000 in bonds, for the enlargement of the elementary school system of this district, was passed by the voters at the election Wednesday. A total vote of 325 ballots was cast. Of these 300 voted in favor of the bonds; 24 voted against the proposal, and one was thrown out because the voter had voted both for and against the bonds.

The money secured from this issue will enable the trustees of the grammar school district to provide accommodations for the children of Redwood City for a number of years to come. It is planned to erect a new six-room school on a seven-acre tract, now owned by the school district, in the Eagle Hill tract. This will care for the children of that district for many years.

An addition will be built on the Garfield shool on the Middlefield Road, in the North Fair Oaks district, relieving a crowded condition which has developed at that school. It is also proposed to purchase two tracts of land in what are considered future centers of population.

Land can be purchased cheaper now than will be possible later, and the sale at some future time of the Central school on Broadway, which is rapidly becoming too valuable for business purposes, for use as a school lot, will provide sufficient funds for the erection of two schools.

Since the opening of the Bayshore highway, too the Central school location has become objectionable, from the fact that two main arteries from the latter highway pass it, one on either side, and with Broadway across the front of the property, the location is a rather hazardous one for the small children who attend the school.

The bonds which the people of this district approved so strongly at Wednesday's election will not result in a rise of the tax rate in the district, in fact the rate may be lowered. The 1916 bond by which the Lincoln and Washington schools were erected, will be retired on the first of the year, and the present issue will take its place.

The bulidings and property of the Redwood City school district are valued at $600,000. During the campaign for the bonds John Gill, district superintendent of schools of this district, investigated the conditions prevailing in other cities of the county. His investigation showed that the Redwood City district is in very strong shape financially. The figures obtained were as follows:

Assessed Valuation of Districts

Bonded Capacity

Outstanding Bonded Indebtedness as of June 30, 1930.

San Mateo—$318,000; Burlingame, $287,000; Redwood City, $206,00.

A glance will indiate that Burlingame and San Mateo are bonded almost to capacity, while Redwood has over $105,000 available which is a remarkable showing.

He confessed to having cut up the suits and was sentenced by Judge Gaffey to a term of 90 days in the county jail and to a fine of $50, on a charge of malicious mischief.

Briefs Filed In Beal Case

The Beale case is still in court. Briefs in the hearing of the case were filed with Judge Maurice T. Dooling, who is hearing the case, this week. In A Million Years

It is only twelve thousand years since mankind was living in the Stone Age. It was only after the advent of the steam age in the early part of the last century that scientific progress began to make any headway. Today, steam has very largely been displaced by electricity. And electricity is only in its infancy. Scientists do not even know what it is. Tomorrow, electricity may be a back number. When man harnesses the atom—and he is trying hard every day—the world may be completely revolutionized. A single atom may drive the new Cunard liner across the Atlantic in a few hours. Human beings may be projected in steel cases from here to Australia. All present-day machinery may be obsolete. Inhabitants of the earth may be taking trips to Mars and other planets. When we get there the Martians may have something to show us that we do not dream of. Perhaps they will discover these secrets before we do and surprise us by dropping in on us one day. It all staggers imagination. Those who believe in reincarnation must rejoice at the prospects.

The Scientific Specialist

The day of the specialist is here. More and more as human knowledge expands we realize that it is impossible for one to know all in one particular field.

A few years ago Baron von Humboldt wrote on Nature. He wrote on oceans, forests, volcanoes, comets, fish, birds, in fact, the whole range of natural phenomena. Had he lived today, he would have found science so much more complex that he would, in order to be considered an authority on anything, have had to devote his whole attention to some particular aspect of nature and would have found little time for study of other phenomena. As a contrast to von Humbodt who wrote on everything, we have today men like Professor Millikin who is spending his life in the study of one particular type of wave motion, the cosmic ray.

The all-around naturalist will always exist, for there will always be men whose minds seek a grasp of the whole scheme of things; but as knowledge increases in every field, the all around nuaturalist will, like the jack of all trades, figure less and less in the advancement of science. Yet he will, in his own quiet way enjoy the fruits of the specialist's labors, fruits of which the specialist by his very specialization and limitation of field may fail to enjoy.

Destructive Competition

When gasoline wars cause the retail price of gasoline on the Pacific coast to drop to ten cents a gallon, including state taxes, the motorist at first thinks he profits. He doesn't at first see the men who have lost jobs with oil companies, private stations that are closed or the reduced purchasing power of the oil industry and its employes.

When a milk war such as has been launched in New York State, offers milk to buyers at nine cents a quart, the consumer does not realize that this cuts a million dollars a month from the buying power of New York State's dairy farmers.

These are specific examples of abnormal price reductions which mean unemployment and lowered purchasing power of producers.

Legitimate price reductions are in order as the world drifts slowly back to normal, but ruinous price competition causes unnecessary hardships to both labor and capital during the readjustment period.

Wear Cotton Movement

Interest in the Wear Cotton Movement which started in the South is now spreading rapidly across the length and breadth of the country. Minneapolis is planning a huge cotton festival at which Mrs. Ibra C. Blackwood, wife of the Governor of South Carolina, will be an honored guest from the south. Mrs. Blackwood wears at gala festivals a striking gown of durene cotton lace representing two major divisions of the cotton industry—combed cotton and quality mercerization.

Red Herrings

If the Bolshevists actually plotted all the mischief ascribed to them, they would be badly overworked as well as tremendously inventive. For the most part, suggested William L. Chenery, editor of Collier's, the spectre of Boshevism is raised by politicians to cover their own mistakes. "Since politics was invented," he observes, "the red herring has been a popular device." A red herring is defined by the dictionaries as "any false or irrelevant issue designed to confuse public opinion."

Year-Round Roads Necessary

It may be the opinion of the average city dweller that the United States is pretty well provided with good roads. But such is not the case. Most of the good highways lead from city to city and over trunk routes from state to state.

Five million farmers, according to an authoritative survey, are cut off from their markets during a large part of each year, by impassable roads.

One very definite way to secure a practical kind of farm relief would be to set apart a specific portion of all available road funds to be applied to the building of low-cost, waterproof surfaced, farm-to-market highways connecting up with through roads and enabling residents on outlying farms to do their shopping and marketing easily and conveniently at all times of the year.

Anger Causes Motor Accidents

The inferiority complex which makes most of us treat other motorists with an assumed disdain and fly into a temper at the slightest conflict over right of way and other trivial things is responsible for many automobile accidents. This is one of the findings of one of the makers of brake linings, who are conducting a nation-wide survey of motoring accident conditions.

"For some strange reason," says W. T. Palmer, an official of the company, "many of us suffer a complete change of character when we get behind the wheel of a car. In our hands an automobile becomes potentially a deadly weapon and should be handled with extreme care and coolness. No perfect driver has ever lived. We are all conscious of our motoring shortcomings and try to cover them with bluff. This is why we are so "touchy" with other drivers."

There is sound sense in his words. Our easily aroused motoring anger robs us of the cool judgment we should exercise at the wheel, especially in moments of stress, and undoubtedly has sent many a car unnecessarily into collision or off the road.

If we would see that our cars are in good running condition, with the right pressure in our tires, plenty of good fresh oil and grease where they are needed, our electrical equipment functioning smoothly and our brakes properly lined and adjusted, and if we would adopt an attitude of friendliness and helpfulness toward other drivers our annual auto toll would be nothing like its present 32,500 killed and 960,000 seriously injured. And it would be a pleasanter world in which to motor. Why not try it?

Civic Pride and Community Spirit

Civic pride and community spirit are not measured in costly publicity campaigns, high-salaried press agents, population and public wealth. If they were, the small town would register but faintly.

Civic pride and true community spirit are found in their purest and most unselfish form in the small town. In the small town one finds that unity of purpose and neighborliness that is never found in cities.

Great cities, only, can offard to spend great sums advertising their advantages. But this does not make community spirit.

The citizens of the small town take the greatest interest in their community. The small town newspaper supports every worthwhile community project and co-operates with every worthy local organization. The small town merchant glories in the fact that he builds his home town when he builds his business.

When you find civic pride and community spirit in the small town you know it is the real thing, and not the product of hired boosters.

Radio Advertising

The listening millions of the North American Continent are awakening to the fact that radio should serve some nobler end than that of a common cheap-jack at a market, shouting the virtues of his wares. Radio listeners are sick to absolute disgust with a broadcasting system whose chief end is advertisement. This disgust is increasing.

Something will be done one of these days to put radio on the high plane where it rightfully belongs.

Wild Flowers

The wild flowers are brightening the landscape and the sides of the highways, and many people are gathering them to take home Usually, however, wild flowers have wilted before home is reached and are thrown away. Had they been left they would have continued to bloom and to delight the eyes of all who pass by. Let us admire the wild flowers this summer, but keep hands off them.

One of the most profitable occupations these days is that of picking out the many bargains presented in the columns of the Times-Gazette. It is a long time since so much might be purchased for a dollar.

There's nothing wrong with business so long as people continue to work out the problems. It's when feet are cocked upon the desk that the greater troubles are presented.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

SHEILA ALLEN, bound for Europe in a tourist cabin, has a cabinmate,

CONSTANCE KERR, a millionaire's daughter, who is her twin in looks. Sheila, after years in a rural town, is seeking adventure.

She has refused to marry her guardian, YOUNG DOCTOR MALCOM BAXTER. Constance tells Sheila she is Heaven-sent-a means of escape from a terrible mess.

Constance is fleeing from her husband, THE COUNT DE BELLEFONTE, whom she married that morning.

She consented to marry him after a quarrel with HARRY EDMONDS, with whom she is desperately in love.

His letters begging her forgiveness are kept from her by her mother. She finds them immediately after her marriage. Realizing that she can never be the Count's wife, she takes passage for Europe at once. Harry is in England.

She begs Sheila to impersonate her in Paris for a few days, while she seeks Harry in London, to try to find a way out of her muddle.

Sheila, scenting adventure agrees.

TOMMY FITZGERALD, an old beau of Constance's, sees Sheila and hails her as Constance. Sheila tells him he has made a mistake.

At Southampton Constance leaves the ship as Sheila Allen, with all of Sheila's effects, including her passport.

At Harve, Fitzgerald sees Sheila with Constance's passport and she says she is the heiress, and explains the tourist passage as payment of a bet. A strange woman embraces her as an old friend.

There she receives a message from the Count, who is in Paris.

Chapter 17—

Further Complications

The Count de Bellefonte looked closely at Sheila, for he did not expect her to agree so readily to his request that she refuse to see Harry Edmonds during his stay in Paris.

Sheila understood, and, despite the complications that Edmond's presence in Paris implied, she almost laughed aloud. "This is a mean trick I'm playing on the poor Count," she thought. "He doesn't guess for a moment that I'm not Constance Kerr, and he is puzzled at my docile manner. She must be a fire-eater."

She had gauged the situation accurately. The Count accustomed to Constance's bursts of temper, had expected a scent to follow his request. On more than one occasion she had treated him to a display of temperament that had left him gasping. He was at a loss to explain her present mildness of manner. What game was she playing now? Then, with characteristic vanity, he decided that she had conceded the point because she really loved him.

Until now he had felt that he must make concessions to her, but, having come to the conclusion that this was no longer necessary, a subtle change took place in his manner. He had obtained the upper hand, and he meant to keep it, but he wouldn't let her know his decision. He'd flatter her and pay her all the little attentions that women like. Accordingly, he leaned toward her and said, in his courtliest manner:

"Constance, you are lovelier than ever. There isn't another woman in the world like you."

Sheila stifled a giggle. She wanted to astound him by saying: "You're wrong, as usual, my dear Jean," but she restrained herself. Instead, she took refuge in her own thoughts, much amused at his efforts to play the master without seeming to do so.

"I wonder," she mused, "what this poor, deluded male would do, if I were suddenly to say: 'My dear Jean, don't you realize that this whole situation is a roaring farce? If you think I'm Constance Kerr, the heiress, whom you married in New York, and you evidently do, I simply can't understand your lack of perception. I'm only an ordinary person who happens to be her double in appearance.'"

The arrival of a waiter with the first course put an end to her musings, and she gave herself the enjoyment of French cookery. When the Count had consulted her preferences before ordering, he had been amazed at her appetite. Constance Kerr was a very abstemious person. Well, she had changed, both as to disposition and taste in food. Before the meal was over, Sheila has made way with an alarming amount of eatables.

"But you always said you disliked sea-food," the Count protested, when Sheila asked for lobster thermidor.

"Oh, Jean," she replied wickedly, "in the days when I was wondering whether you loved me, I didn't know what I liked and what I didn't. Now that that's settled, I'm my normal self once more. You don't know me, really."

'I'm beginning to think I don't," he muttered.

Sheila grinned. "I might as well have some fun out of this mess," she said to herself.

A moment later the Count exclaimed in horror when she said she wanted the desert that was being served to a woman at the next table. "That stuff?" he cried. "Never. I won't permit it. You'll be deathly sick, and I can't have that."

'But what is it?" she persisted.

"Oh, some American mess —Baked Alaska is its name, I believe. Terrible stuff. Ice-cream and pastry. Try some of this cheese. I can vouch for it. It will make your mouth water.'

Sheila gave in grecefully. The cheese was set before her. It was so strong that it took her breath away. "It makes my eyes water, instead," she muttered. "Jean, I hope you know more about women than you do about cheese."

She sipped her coffee and looked about the beautiful room. This was an experience she would never forget. What a lucky girl Constance Kerr was to have had such luxury all her life. And where was Constance Kerr now, That question was uppermost in Sheila's mind.

'A penny for your thoughts," said the Count, trying has best to be agreeable. "By the way, my purpose in wanting to see you—my especial purpose, that is, was to lay before you a plan to reconcile your parents to our marriage. Now I suggest——"

He stopped speaking as Shiela choked in her napkin. "What's the trouble?" he said. "You're white as a sheet. You look as if you'd seen a ghost. Are you ill?"

'It's that cheese you were so ready to vouch for," she managed to say. "I feel as if I'd swallowed a pot of pepper. Maybe I'd better go to my room."

He gave her his arm and led her to the elevator. "You look as if you'd seen a ghost," he repeated. She smiled wanly. No, she hadn't seen a ghost, but she had seen, in the doorway of the dining-room, a moment before, a young man who looked very much like the pictures Constance had shown her of Harry Edmonds.

FRENCH DEMONSTRATE FOOTBALL SUPERIORITY

PARIS, June 5 (UP)—For the first time in the history of international soccer matches between England and Continental teams, the English eleven tasted defeat by five goals to two when the French side crushed them at the Colombes Stadium, on the outskirts of Paris.

This heavy defeat sent the English team home thinking deeply and realizing that France has not only learned to play football, but has learned to play first-class football. The French players showed themselves speedier, which offset the superior technique of the players from across the Channel.

For these international matches England has been in the habit of sending a makeshift sort of team, which is really not the English international team which meets Scotland or Wales, for example. The players have always regarded the trip to Paris as a holiday, taking it for granted that no special effort is necessary to master a French eleven. This has been the idea at the back of the minds of nearly all the English footballers who have come to this side to play and now they have learned their lesson.

Asks Better Teams

As one sports critic writing in a French newspaper declares: "We know that England does not send its best team over here to meet France. Now, after such a crushing defeat, the English selectors will perhaps realize they must send their best men, otherwise English football prestige on the Continent is going to suffer. If England will not send better teams than this last one, then she had better not send any teams at all."

This last match revealed that the French have made enormous progress at soccer football within the past five years. A few weeks ago, the French national team defeated Germany and the victory over England has given hope that these successes will be repeated when France meets Scotland, probably not before the autumn when the soccer football season starts again.

WEST. AMATEUR PUBLIC LINKS MEETS JULY 20-25

PORTLAND, Ore., June 5 (UP)—Adding to the list of Portland's many golf tournaments will be the first annual Western amateur public links tournament, which will be played July 20-25.

About 150 entries from various parts of the country are expected, according to F .S. "Cy" Young, general chairman. Many golfers will play in the first annual tournament and continue east for the national public links tournament at St. Paul, starting August 4.

The committee in charge of the tournament here will include Dr. O. F. Willing, member of the American Walker cup team; C. T. Haas, director of the Western Golf association and executive committeeman of the U. S. Golf Association; Don Moe, former Western amateur champion and Walker cup member; T. Morris Dunne and Arthur Callan.

Outboard Meet Attracts Stars

SKANEATELES, N. Y., June 4. (UP)—Many noted drivers already have signified intentions to compete in the second annual regatta of the Eastern Intercollegiate Outboard Motor Association to be held here on June 19 and 20.

Miss Loretta Turnbull, 18, of Monrovia, Calif., who gained international note when she won the Fascist Party Cup at Lake Garda, Italy, more than a month ago, was among those who filed appliation for entry.

Another entrant well known in the outboard racing world is Wade Woodworth, all-American football guard at Northwestern university. Woodworth demonstrated his driving ability by winning the 1931 Albany-New York 132-mile marathon with an average speed of 41.8 miles per hour.

Stewart Nunnelley, of Syracuse university, will defend the world's records he established at the first intercollegiate regatta here last year. Nunnelley will head a team from Syracuse university.

William Crawford, who last year led Colgate university to victory in the team event, also will compete. Crawford now is with the University of Miami.

Universities already entered for the regatta include Yale, Dartmouth, Syracuse, Cornell, Citrus College of California, University of Miami, Alabama, Brown, Fordham, New York University, St. John's and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Others are expected to apply for entry in the immediate future.

G. Reynolds Rowe, Commodore of the Association and former Colgate student, has arrived here to receive applications and complete arrangements for the regatta.

SIX MILLION SILVER DOLLARS TO BE MOVED

NEW ORLEANS, June 4. (UP)—More than six million silver dollars will be moved from the old United States Mint to the Customs House here, preparatory to renovating the mint for a federal prison.

Hold-up men, however, would find a difficult time getting away with it even if the transfer were unprotected. The silver is held in 6,875 sacks, with one thousand dollars in each sack. And each sack weighs 65 pounds.

NEW ORLEANS, June 4 (UP)—Following a 20-year fight by leaders of the Intracoastal Canal in Louisiana to clear the route in Louisiana to the Texas line, right-of-way has been granted by the government through Terrebonne Parish.

Only a few short strips in Jefferson Parish, right outside New Orleans, now remain to obstruct the clearance of the entire route.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

HOLLYWOOD, June 5 (UP) — William C. de Mille, director, has just been signed for a long term by Paramount. The new contract brings him back to the company with which he started nearly 18 years ago.

Howard Eastbrook, R-K-O scenario writer, recently spent 36 consecutive hours at his typewriter, preparing a new scenario. This, he claims, constitutes a new kind of record.

Eastbrook has several times found it necessary to take a 24-hour shift at his machine but he believes his new record will stand for some time to come.

A new stage star has made his appearance in the Hollywood in the person of Forrest Stanley, who is to be co-starred with June Clyde, another stage celebrity, in one of Columbia's forthcoming vehicles.

Mr. Stanley formerly was a highly successful player on the legitimate stage while Miss Clyde was a popular comedy and vaudeville attraction. She made her first appearance before the comera in 1929.

One of the latest players to receive a role of importance with one of Columbia's pictures is Fred Burns, formerly a world's champion "broncho buster," and a celebrated feature with Buffalo Bill and the 101 Ranch.

George Arliss and Mrs. Arliss who sailed for England May 29th for a holiday at his home on the Kentish coast until next autumn, will return to California on November first, when his next starring vehicle will be ready.

Wallace Smith, well known author and scearist, believes that the magic traveling rug and the seven-league boots of ancient times are actually realized in the modern airplane.

Smith recently found it necessary to obtain a considerable amount of data from the remote region of the Mexican interior states. Having no time to gain his material through correspandence and precented from using an automobile by the lack of roads, he left Hollywood by special plane, made the survey required, and returned to his home the same night.

Howard Hughes, the multi-millionaire film producer, is out with the announcement that the gorgeous Bille Dove will make her first screen appearance in more than a year in 'The Age for Love."

Hollywood has learned to sit up and listen when Hughes makes an announcement. It usually means that a picture of more than usual significance is coming.

"The finest talent that money can buy, including writers, technicians and players, is being drawn upon to provide Miss Dove with an appropriate vehicle for her return to the films after a year's vacation," said Hughes.

It would take any amount of argument to convince thousands of movie fans that Miss Dove is not the most beautiful woman on the screen. Picture her against the most elaborate settings that Hughes' experts can provide and then wait for "The Age for Love."

The film play is based on a novel by Ernest Pascal and Frank Lloyd was selected to direct.

Hughes also made known other plans. His 1931-32 program included 'Ground Hogs," an original aviation comedy, and "Scarface," a gangster melodrama, in the immediate future.

"Queer People," the book in which Carroll and Garrett Grahan panned most of Hollywood's celebrities, is held on the shelves by Hughes while Hollywood wonders just how much of the book will be eliminated to appease the movie moguls who were roughly treated by the authors.

And—vague rumors come from the studio that when 'Queer People" reaches the screen nothing will be left out.

Half Million Spent by State In Blind Aid

Twelve Persons in County Receive Help From This Source

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, June 4—(UP) — California spends nearly half a million dollars a year in aid to the needy blind.

This is the estimate of Miley M. Pope, director of the department of social welfare, who says that although the maximum "pension" provided by law is $50 a month, the average for the state is $33.34.

San Mateo county is now providing aid for 12 blind persons, who receive an average aid of $13.95 per person, Miss Pope's report showed.

Of all the blind in California, nearly two-thirds, or 65 per cent, are 60 years and over, the state aid provided under a measure adopted by the people in 1928 has made it possible to give them adequate care in comfortable surroundings.

"For the younger blind every effort has been made to place them in touch with opportunities leading to self-support or partial self-support," said Miss Pope. "This stimulates their desire for independence as fas as possible."

More men go blind than women, it was shown by a study of the group of 50 years of age and younger. By far the greater number of those receiving aid were single, proving that blindness acts as a deterrent to marriage.

In this group it was discovered a larger number have attended college than for the entire group. Many of these, however, have been blind since childhood.

When the new law was passed in 1929 there were 839 of the estimated 2,560 blind in California receiving aid under the old system, and 260 in county institutions. County aid totaled $98,852.

"The new act has proved to be far more generous," said Miss Pope, "as evidenced by the fact that 1,414 blind recipients will approximate $220,000 from the counties and a like amount from the state."

County Shows Decrease In Tuberculosis

State War on Disease Results In Fewer Deaths Despite Greater Population

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, June 4—(UP) — "Tuberculosis." If the family doctor whispered that word a few years ago, it was as if he had signed a death warrant.

Today, however, the dread disease is rapidly being conquered by legislation and modern science in California, and its death toll is annually decreasing.

In 1915 a far-seeing legislature adopted an act permitting counties and groups of counties to erect and maintain sanitoriums with the state subsidy of $3 per week for every patient cared for at public expense. What has been the result?

In the 15 years that have intervened the death rate has dropped from 189 to 106.8 per 100,000 of population. In other words, the lives of nearly 30,000 persons have been saved.

Take the last 5 years, for example. In that period, tuberculosis deaths have dropped from 5,896 to 5,855, while California's population gained at tremendous rates.

In San Mateo county the deaths from this disease decreased from 92 to 75, according to Mrs. Edythe Tate Thompson, chief of the state bureau of tuberculosis.

"Our declining death rate is due to many factors," said Mrs. Thompson. Isolation of the open case year after year is certainly bringing results. Education and a plea for early diagnosis, the opening of more clinics every year has placed thousands under supervision. The examination of contacts, with the nutrition program in schools, and the great education work done in the preventoria, the widespread interest of the general public because tuberculosis touches rich and poor alike, are some of the important factors in control.

"What the picture would have been without the 8-hour law and the minimum wage act is difficult to guess, except again to review the occupations of those women admitted to hospitals and clinics and to note no great number charged to any one industry.

Housewives led the list of tuberculosis deaths in California last years with 981, followed by laborers with 766 and home residents with 430. Next, in order, came children, farmers, school girls, school boys, miners, clerks, salesmen, cooks, carpenters, stenographers, mechanics, students, painters, seamen, railroad men, waiters, barbers, merchants, truck drivers, nurses, bookkeepers, gardeners, janitors, tailors, butchers, blacksmiths, musicians, realtors, bankers and newspaper workers.

Washington A Model Farmer

WASHINGTON, June 4 (UP)—Ample evidence that George Washington, through all his troubles as commander-in-chief of the Continental Army in the Revolution and his administrative duties afterwards with the new-born republic, remained at heart a farmer is existing throughout the numerous diaries which the first president filled from early youth to his final days.

The diaries indicate that Washington not only was a large landowning farmer in his native Virginia, but was one of the most progressive agriculturists in the country at that time.

Advocated Crop Changes

An advocate of crop rotation, Washington imported new fruit trees and vines and even rare trees for the beautification of the grounds about his estate.

He tried alfalfa, then known as Lucerne; he also tried Siberian and South African wheat in order to find if the ground of Virginia would accommodate them and found that the grain imported for him from the region around the Cape of Good Hope, was very successful. Washington even carried his farming into the inventive stage and developed the famous "barrel plow," combined plow, drill and harrow.

His agricultural work often was interrupted by his duties to his country, but he always returned to his farm lands.

The city council met in special session Tuesday evening. The councilmen present were Dale, Weeden and Crane. This was the time set for awarding a contract for street work on Pine street and adjoining thoroughfares. Four bids were opened by the clerk, after the mayor had suspended the regular order of business, and were read. The bids were turned over to City Engineer Mehl for compiling. After a half an hour Mehl, returned with his report. The estimates were as follows:

C. W. Wood, $20,176; W. A. Dantonville, $22,117.34; S. M. McGaw, $25,766.66; A. G. Raisch, $19,964.31. By a resolution adopted by the council Raisch was awarded the contract, he being only $211.69 lower than C. W. Wood, who did the street work in Stanford Park. The engineer's estimate was $22,250. The councilmen were pleased at the low figure. The successful competitor is a son of the A. J. Raisch, the well-known contractor who has the contract to pave sixteen streets in Palo Alto.

Work on the new contract will start early in July and will be pushed to an early completion. The council is to be congratulated upon the manner in which it conducted the preliminary proceedings for this much needed improvement. Though hampered the council fearlessly and courageously carried out the plan definitely adopted some months ago. All differences have been settled by the protesting property owners. When the work is finished and when all will see the necessity of the improvements all factional bitterness will fade like ice in a hot summer day.

Samuel M. Shortridge, Jr., is receiving the congratulations of his many friends for the flattering vote he received at the Grand Parlor, when he was elected grand trustee, standing second in a list of nine candidates, seven of which was chosen. Mr. Shortridge was at the end of the ballot. Had he been at the head he would no doubt have received first honors. Mr. Shortridge aspires to be the grand president of the Native Sons of the Golden West, an honor much sought after by prominent Natives of the state.

On Thursday morning, June 4th Feast of Corpus Christi, at nine o'clock at Corpus Christi Monastery, Oak Grove avenue, Menlo Park, there will be a solemn high mass followed by the opening of the Forty Hours Devotion and Procession of the Blessed Sacrament in the Garden. The Reverend Fathers and Seminarians from St. Patrick's Seminary will conduct the ceremony and singing.

The nuns cordially invite attendance on this their Paternal Feast Day.

That history repeats itself was fully demonstrated last Monday when the board of supervisors appointed Henry C. Hall, Jr., a member of the county board of education to fill the unexpired term of the late W. J. Savage. Young Hall is superintendent of the San Bruno grammar school.

His father, the late Henry C. Hall, was a member of the board of education for many years and acted as chairman of the board for some years. Mr. Hall, Sr., was accounted one of the ablest educators in the state. During his long career he held many positions of trust. For years he was principal of the night school in San Francisco. A way back in the eighties he was a candidate for auditor of the county but was defeated by eight votes by the late Edward Eikerenkotter. Later Mr. Hall was a candidate for state superintendent of schools.

Young Hall is following in the footsteps of his father and promises to be just as successful in his chosen profesion.

Holy Cross cemetery presented a beautiful appearance on Saturday last when hundreds gathered at the burial place to lay garlands upon the last resting places of their relatives and friends departed. Menlo Parlor N. S. G. W. came to the cemetery early with about twenty members who went from grave to grave of the departed members, decorating them with the emblems of the society. The ceremony was touching and beautiful. Among the Native Sons' group was Lucas Greer of Palo Alto, the pioneer who was first to raise the American flag at Woodside in the fifties. His father and mother were married at the old Santa Clara Mission in the forties. Greer has been prominently identified with the organization of the Native Sons since its organization in 1874. George Murray, marshal of Menlo Parlor, mustered his forces and led the way to each burial plot. Holy Cross cemetery was purchased the seventies but was not consecrated until November 1883, when Bishop Riordan came from San Francisco for that purpose. The cemetery is named after the avenue that runs by, Santa Cruz avenue, which means Holy Cross. Fifteen hundred people witnessed the impressive ceremony. The bishop was assisted by Father Riordan, then pastor of the Menlo church. The singing was led by the late Edward F. Fitzpatrick.

Mayor Weeden made a hurried trip to Sacramento yesterday to attend a dinner at the Senator Hotel at which Governor Rolph attended and signed the Teletype Bill. All chiefs of police of the state were present.

When a dog bites a man it is not news, but when a man bites a dog, then it is news, and when a canine chews a reporter's leg, what is it? It's painful. Edward Gamon, the rather good looking reporter for the Menlo News, while going down the street on Wednesday was attacked by a vicious pug and severely bitten. No doubt, Gamon like Mark Twain, will say the account of the affair was exaggerated and make light of the incident.

The smallest paper printed in the world is published in North Palo Alto by E. Sebring. It is four by six and contains the happenings of that locality. The editor is the teacher of printing trade at the base hospital.

The tidy sum of $108.05 was raised for the Boy Scouts at the card party given last week. This sum will give a vacation to thirteen boys at Memorial Park during the month for one week.

A robbery took place at Chinatown last Saturday night which netted the robbers $1100. A business house was broken into, and that sum taken from the inmates. The crime was perpetrated by a Chinese and three white men. The Celestial was arrested afterwards through the cleverness of Chief Love who telephoned the city giving a description and name of the Chinese. He was arrested at his haunts in China town. The others fled and are not yet apprehended but Chief Love believes that it won't be long before the culprits are behind the bars.

The attractive shade traees along Oak Grove avenue will not be removed when the sidewalks are laid down in the near future. This will be pleasing news to those living on the avenue. Many of these shade trees were planted fifty years ago. It would be a tragedy to cut them down.

Following an illness of four weeks Frank X. Lintner, aged sixty, and father of Frank M. Lintner and Roger Lintner, passed away at San Jose on Saturday last. The deceased was well known and liked in Menlo Park and had many friends here.

The deceased leaves the following relatives to mourn his death: his widow, Mrs. Mae Lintner; three sons, Frank and Roger Lintner of Menlo Park, and Ralph Lintner of San Francisco; a daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Jones, San Francisco; a brother, Louis Lintner; and six sisters, Mrs. Theresa Mesner, Mrs. Hulda Molema, Mrs. Matilda Smith, Mrs. Katherine Kane, Mrs. Wanda Binz and Mrs. Mary Gode.

Friendly Indians In Special Meeting

The Sioux Friendly Indians at a special meeting on Wednesday afternoon went over to White Oaks in San Carlos, where pictures were taken of the tribe dressed in full Indian regalia and with a tepee in the background.

If these pictures turn out well they will be used in the new Friendly Indian Manual which is being prepared by Roy A. Hohberger, the local secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, who is the originator of the Friendly India idea.

This manual, which will be published the latter part of August, will not only get into the hands of many thousands of boys all over the United States, but also in a number of foreign countries.

The manual content is being written up in a very interesting style, which fits in with the latest ideas on boy psychology. Many novel Indiancraft ideas are being worked out as a part of the program projects, which ought to make this one of the most valuable manuals of younger boy activity and program that has thus far been put out.

RELATIVE OF LOCAL MEN DIES IN OAKLAND

Lyle and Harry Bourquin, the contractors, were called to Oakland Tuesday to attend the funeral of their cousin, Dr. Irving Burton Kenney, a practicing dentist in that city for several years past. Dr. Burton spent Saturday and Sunday with his cousins here and had a most enjoyable visit, being driven to La Honda and other attractive places in the neighborhood. He was apparently in the best of health. Sunday night when he returned to his home he was taken ill and passed away Monday morning. His death, so unexpected, was a great shock to his relatives here.

Kiwanians Hear Talk On Radio Broadcast

An interesting talk on the radio industry was given before members of the Redwood City Kiwanis Club by Bill Wright, well-known radio entertainer and member of the staff of station KFRC of San Francisco. Wright told of the care given the programs which are sent out from broadcasting station, and also of the advertising methods which are used.

Wright is a member of the well-known jamboree in which he takes the part of Prof. Von Hamburg, Reginald Cheerily and of Zeb. His talk was most interesting and instructive and was greatly enjoyed by the members of the club.

The chairman of the meeting was George Eriskine. A radio was loaned to the club by Boles Radio Den and some fun was had with one of Wright's records which are used for broadcast purposes.

Matchless economy with six-cylinder smoothness

"Better than 20 miles to the gallon." "Its cost-per-mile is the lowest of any car." "Never have to add oil between crankcase changes." "Drove from Ohio to California on a repair expense of $1.05." "It just runs and runs and runs."

—typical comments from owners of the Chevrolet Six

Chevrolet's 159" frame supports the body throughout its entire length

Why is it that Chevrolet—a big, powerful, smooth-running six—actually costs less to operate and maintain than any other car you can buy? The answer lies in five outstanding factors of Chevrolet economy:

1. Efficient Engine Design makes Chevrolet fuel consumption so low that 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline is nothing unusual for a Chevrolet owner.

2. Modern Chassis Design—as evidenced by Chevrolet's long heavy frame, four parallel-mounted springs, and smooth-running six-cylinder engine—increases the ability of the Chevrolet Six to run dependably, day after day.

3. Excellence of Manufacture also adds to Chevrolet dependability and long life. Chevrolet pistons, for instance, are built so carefully, and held true to such close limits of precision, that many owners have gone 20,000 miles or more without having their motors opened for major servicing.

4. High-Quality Materials are used throughout the Chevrolet car—costly nickel steel, chrome-vanadium steels, chrome-nickel steels—to assure trouble-free, low-cost service for tens of thousands of miles.

5. Economical Nationwide Service, with its low flat-rate charges on labor and genuine parts, is available at 10,000 dealers throughout the country, who also offer the protection of the most liberal owner's service policy ever to back a low-priced car.

Chevrolet's Owner's Service Policy is the most liberal ever offered in connection with a low-priced car

Remember—in addition to all these basic economies—Chevrolet offers the extra dollars-and-cents advantage of one of the lowest delivered prices on the market. And this cost may be spread over a period of many months by the liberal G.M.A.C. plan.

MY MAID IS AN ELECTRIC RANGE

and she cooked this dinner for 4¢

THE ELECTRIC RANGE is just like having a maid at practically no additional cost. And this "maid" doesn't eat anything; she never complains, nor asks for a raise. She cooks food perfectly for about 1c a meal per person. And the joy of entertaining depends so much upon having this helper in the kitchen.

The electric range cooks food automatically. You place an entire meal in the oven—in the morning if you like. At 4 o'clock when you are miles away the Electric Timer turns the electricity on and starts the meal cooking. A Thermostat keeps the oven heat just right. At 6 o'clock the Timer turns the current off. If you're late getting home, the insulated oven keeps the food hot.

And electric cooking is as clean as sunshine. Platform cooking elements are faster—as fast as you'd want them. The electric range itself costs no more than any other good range.

Come into our office or a dealer's store and see the new electric range. Then select the model you prefer. Special terms will make it easy.

The trial of Clarence Gray for shooting an editor in Santa Barbara has filled our town with Santa Barbarians of every shade and type. The merchant, the lawyer, the doctor, the editor, the magistrate, the sheriff, the constable, the coroner, the hotel keeper, the saloon patron, the dignified citizen and the other classes are all represented. In justice we are compelled to say that they are no more barbarious looking than other people. So far the Christian sentiment of this community has not been startlingly affected by the irruption.

Friday afternoon a horse attached to a buggy, belonging to Stafford & Dugan, started from the court house and ran away. Mr. Dugan took the horse and buggy over to the court house for the sheriff of Santa Barbara county, who intended to visit Menlo Park, and was in the act of stepping out, when the horse, thinking someone was getting in, started, which threw Mr. Dugan off his feet and caused him to drop the lines. The horse continued up A street and turned into Main street, where he was stopped by Richard Hanley, who rushed into the middle of the street and caught the horse by the bridle and succeeded in stopping him before any damage was done.

Cactus Bootleg Industry Grows

By GEORGE D. CRISSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PHOENIX, Ariz., June 5—A new bootlegging industry is thriving in Arizona as a result of a state law prohibiting the removal of natural plant life on public lands and a growing demand for the desert type garden, composed of flowering cactus plants.

Many of the numerous cacti species may be purchased at any floral shop, prices ranging from 25 cents for a small prickly pear to several dollars for larger types.

The explanation usually given by a florist is that the plants come from private lands where growing cacti is the major industry. A survey by the Arizona Industrial Congress, however, shows there are very few places where cactus plants are grown commercially.

Public Domain Source

Homesteaders and desert land owners supply part of the plants in clearing their holdings but most of them, the Industrial Congres explains, come from public domain. In other words, they are bootlegged.

In most instances, the florist buying a load of plants is not— and need not be—concerned with their origin. Although the act of removing a plant is a crime, there is no law against sale or posession.

The sum involved in the sale of cacti is estimated from $100,000 per year to nearly a million. This range indicates that one guess is as good as another.

Many Arizonians make a living dealing in bootlegged plant life. Half the homes in the southern section of the state have a cactus garden and it is a safe bet that most of the plants came from public lands, in violation of the law.

Protests Brings Law

A Phoenix garden society, protesting against wholesale removal of desert plants by tourists, prepared and forced through the legislature a bill outlawing the removal or disturbance of natural plant life. The trouble was, and is, that the bill failed to provide means of enforcement.

At present enforcement is confined to a few signs here and there along the highways, and a note on visiting motorists permits saying it is a crime to remove or disturbe natural plants.

Occasionally there is an arrest, but always on some person's specific complaint. Police generally pay no attention to the law as most of their work is confined to towns while the plants the law protects are located out on public lands.

Week at the Capitol

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 5 — The State of California believes in newspaper advertising.

Authority for this statement is none other than Rolland A. Vandegrift, director of the state department of finance, who says that the budget allowance for advertising the California State Fair this year has been doubled.

"We feel the California press is the most effective means of reaching the public," said Vandegrift.

The advertising allocation will again be handled by the California Newspaper Publishers Association. The state has permanently discontinued roadside billboard advertising.

With Asa Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles county as its head, a legal and vocational guidance department has been organized at San Quentin state prison.

The new organization, according to H. A. Shuder, educational director of the prison, will aid prisoners in solving their legal difficulties and assist in helping them find occupations by which they can rehabilitate themselves after they get out of prison.

Because Germany permits the importation of grapes packed in ground cork at a reasonable tariff, but imposes a much higher duty on grapes packed in sawdust, California's state bureau of commerce is endeavoring to have a change made.

Germany offers a wide market to grapes shipped in refrigerated condition, it was found, the only handicap being the high duty. Spain, with an exportable grape surplus and an abundance of ground cork has an advantage over California where sawdust is used by necessity, it was explained.

State gasoline tax delinquencies by some 29 independent oil producers now total approximately $2,250,000. it was announced by State Controller Ray L. Riley.

Attorney General U. S. Webb has been informed of the situation, and it is expected that suits to recover the money will be instituted at once.

At the beginning of the year some $1,250,000 was delinquent, which led the state legislature to pass an emergency law requiring all companies to pay their taxes monthly instead of quarterly.

Further delinquencies totaling $1,375,000 were piled up for the first three months of the year.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute.

Governor Signs County Bill

Governor James Rolph this week signed the bill fixing the salaries for county officers of this county. Assembly Bill 367 regulating the salaries of this county was introduced by Assemblyman Harry Parkman. The bill was not well received by some of the county officers, others approved of it. The chief reason for complaint was found in the offices of County Clerk Hinman and County Treasurer Harry Jenkins. In both of these offices the fee system, by which the office holder received fees paid into his office has been done away with, and now fees must be paid into the county treasury. The salary of these two offices has been raised from $3500 to $3900. The change in fees, however, takes immediate effect, but the rise in pay cannot come into effect until the end of their terms.

County Assessor Flynn is allowed an additional deputy by the provisions of the bill for the purpose of reassessing the county. Sheriff McGrath is allowed the services of a finger-print expert, and of an additional bailiff when the second court is opened in this county.

The bill also prohibits a county officer from holding office with any city or other political incorporation or of receiving work from such an incorporation if it interferes with his duties as a county officer.

Boys Enjoy Camp Near Pescadero

The Buffalo Bill Pioneers, boys 12 to 16 years of age, under the program of the Young Men's Christian Association of the Garfield school district, had a fine treat this past week-end, when their leader, George White, took them to the Butano falls, near Pescadero. The boys enjoyed the hospitality of one of the cabins and from reports from the boys it was one of the finest times they have ever had.

The Buffalo Bills are one of the outstanding boys' clubs of the peninsula. Not only are they very active in carrying on the regular club activities but in participation in the many interclub activities and in giving of their services in helpfulness to the school and community.
